Transaction costs and costs for ancillary services

Orders in foreign currency

When you give a buy or sell order for an investment product in another currency, the bank converts the value of the order into euros. We use real-time market rates at the time of conversion, including a margin. This margin consists of a percentage, depending on the currency. This incorporates the costs that ABN AMRO incurs to hedge and convert the foreign currency. For more information on the method of calculation and the main surcharges and discounts, please go to abnamro.nl/ordervreemdevaluta

Costs that you pay to others

Costs related to the product (product costs)

Ongoing charges (OCF)

The ongoing charges give an overview of the costs an investment fund incurs. This includes management costs and extra costs such as legal costs, the accountancy fee and other operational costs. Also non-paid interest is usually included in the running costs. The investment fund calculates the running costs per fund class divided over a period of 12 months and automatically incorporates them in the price of the investment fund. You can read more about these costs in the key information document (KID) and the prospectus of the fund.

One-off fund charges

These are the one time fees which the fund administrator charges for the creation of the private equity fund and the target fund. The fund administrator calculates these costs once and processes them in the price of the investment fund. You can read more about these costs in the key information document (KID) and the prospectus of the fund.

Performance fee fund manager

The performance fee is a variable compensation for the fund manager if the fund achieves positive returns. There are various ways to determine this performance compensation, this can differ per fund. The fund administrator includes the performance compensation in the return of the investment fund. You can read more about these costs in the key information document (KID) and the prospectus of the fund.

Costs and returns

Your investments are subject to costs. These reduce your return. Investing also involves taking risks. You should therefore carefully consider whether investing is (still) appropriate for you or whether savings would be a better option for you.
